Just as I'm about to step into the office of the Ministry of the Inner Ocean, a man I recognize as Mao's bodyguard comes running towards me. "Why are you here?" he asks. "Your father has come to visit," he says. "I don't believe you." "He's right here," I say, pointing to him, and he looks again. "You're lying." "I am," I reply. "My father can't possibly have come to visit me in Shanghai." "I'm telling the truth," I say, taking him by the arm. "Come with me," I say, and he follows me out of the Ministry of the Inner Ocean. After a while, we come to the front gate of the compound, and the sentry there, who didn't recognize me, gives the guard a signal that a visitor has arrived. The man's eyes are alight, like those of a schoolboy, and he seems almost unwilling to speak. I can tell something is very important to him, but I don't know what it is. "Take me to see him." I say. Summary and Conclusions

In this letter, we have demonstrated a new scenario for QGP production in heavy ion collisions. In our model, we assume that the quarks which reach the critical temperature and subsequent freeze-out will decay rapidly into the mixed meson and quarkonia states. The latter are relatively long-lived states which escape the system and are therefore emitted freely from the system with an enhancement factor of approximately 10-100. Our simulation of the dilepton enhancement factor and the low mass dilepton enhancement factor from QGP formation is consistent with our model predictions.

Acknowledgment

We would like to thank Dr. D. Strottman for helpful discussions and Mr. W. Cassing for providing us with the implementation of the dilepton spectra from [Cass98].
