In a landmark decision, the Sarwar Mosque in eastern Pakistan has been denied a permit to construct a new mosque. According to Pakistan's Dawn, mullahs at the mosque have already burned down two other structures. The ruling was handed down after a mosque leader, Pir Saleem, lodged a complaint against the government for giving out the building permit. The mosque has been in a state of dispute ever since its leader, Pir Saleem – who styles himself as an Islamic scholar – submitted applications for permits to build a new mosque as well as a community center. He cited a "climate of terror" at the community center, and said that the members were afraid to enter the space in light of recent attacks in the area. By tradition, the Sarwar Mosque offers a central place of worship to Shiite Muslims. Originally built around 1920, it was turned into a civilian college after the partition of the subcontinent. However, the purchase of arms by Pakistani military in

In vitro effect of antimicrobial zinc oxide-based cements on Streptococcus mutans: a comparative study. This study compares the antibacterial effects of zinc oxide cements on Streptococcus mutans and evaluates their susceptibility to release of dissolved silver ions. Two groups of zinc oxide cements were studied; one with and the other without silver nanoparticles. Silver-loaded cement was found to have a 1.34- $\log(10)$  reduction in S. mutans concentration. There was no statistically significant difference between the cements without silver and cements containing silver nanoparticles. The average dissolved silver ions in the cements with and without silver nanoparticles was 4.7 and 1.6 ppm, respectively. The results of the present study demonstrated that the cements containing silver nanoparticles showed no significant difference in antibacterial effectiveness when compared with cements without silver nanoparticles. BHP Billiton has spent decades developing gas from Australia's massive Roy Hill iron ore mine in an energy-intensive process that uses huge amounts of water and is expected to run out as global demand for the metal takes off. The bosses of BHP Billiton who developed the resource can spend £750m a year on infrastructure for the mine, but the work would cost less than any other future technology that can extract the metal. THE Chinese government is reportedly considering a ban on shark fin soup. In the proposed law, sharks are protected in the same way as dogs, cats and other animals. The proposal aims to protect the sharks from fishing traps that are introduced by the ships that carry the illegal product to China. "It's not the first time we are hearing of the government wanting to ban shark fin soup. It's not surprising because it is legal in other parts of the world," says Diana Jurado, Latin America expert at the New England Aquarium. Angela Merkel's successor as German chancellor, Angela Merkel's protégée, is set to become one of the most powerful leaders in Europe, as Donald Tusk's new EU presidency caps a year of historic changes at the European Union.
