This new BAA study found some of the most active travellers were families who have just flown with Sunjet, which is considerably better than the industry average of 96, by a large margin. Mothers in particular were more active travellers. The new findings show that travellers tend to visit websites of larger airlines whenever possible and that 88 percent of travellers choose the airline that they have flown with most recently. The research indicates that major airlines may be losing out to air taxis and alternative air travel as a result of their focus on bigger, faster passenger planes. Most travellers said they used their credit cards, credit/debit cards, debit cards or cash to pay for their trip, and the most popular brands were American Express, Visa, MasterCard and British Airways. A further 26 percent of travellers pay for flights on their own. The study also revealed that one in every 10 travellers had travelled with Sunjet only once in the last year. In the last 12 months, more than 2.1 billion passengers have been flown by air taxis and alternative airlines. The biggest of which is SunAir Travel, a US-based charter company, which raised $18.9 million in 2009 from venture capitalists in
