La Casa del Rey La Casa del Rey (English: The Castle of the King), also known as Casa del Rey, is an artist-run art center and gallery located at 200 West 26th Street in Chelsea, Manhattan, New York City, in the United States. Architecture and location La Casa del Rey is housed in the third floor of a brick town house at 200 West 26th Street, a brick building first constructed in 1853, and occupied until 1960 by Manufacturers Brewing Company, a major Belgian-American brewery. The building was then divided into small one- or two-room apartments, mostly converted to residential use, and was subsequently the home of the Eisner Museum of American Animation. It was converted into an artists' co-op in 1972 and has since been used as space for a variety of companies, including the first Chelsea gallery to carry the gallery's name, 1988 to 1994. It has been the home of the organization since 1994. The name of the building comes from the title of the residence of King George III, first taken by the house in the early 19th century and refurbished in the Queen Anne style. It is notable for having been designed as a separate building to avoid building the royal residence in the commercial center of the city, and for housing the largest collection of fine oil paintings at the time in the United States. The building is noted as the best extant example of the Queen Anne style in the city. The building was remodeled in the 1980s and 1990s by Jacques Pollet Studio, Charles Passauer, and Gary Inwag, and remains an example of landmarked mid-20th-century Chelsea architecture.
